Education

In 2014 I graduated from the Northern Film School achieving a BA honours Degree in Moving Image Production. I worked on many short films covering the majority of departments to understand the logistics behind film making and identify where my talents would be most useful. Alongside making short films, I independently created a corporate video for a small business hosting an exhibition at the NEC in Birmingham. I recorded both sound and picture before editing the entire process. This is now used as the promotional video for the event. I volunteered as a trainee on the first two feature films I worked on, which gave me the foundation of knowledge for the basic equipment used within sound. It also provided me with an insight into set etiquette thus preparing me for future work throughout my career.

Skills

I have always been fascinated by technology and I have a clear understanding of how many forms of technology work. Due to my varied experience within the industry, I have worked with multiple models of sound recording devices owned by a selection of freelancers and production companies. Through working with various professionals, who use different methods, I have been able to continue to build upon my ever expanding knowledge. I recognise the importance of the sound department and collaborative work. I am intrigued by the process of creating sound through music. This is something I enjoy doing in my spare time as I have a passion for many genres of music and I am a keen guitarist. I have developed an abundance of skills during my time spent attending educational institutes and within the workplace. Due to being one for creative writing and having a passion for the first steps in creating a film, I thrived whilst being part of an extracurricular screen writing group. I have experienced generating an income in a range of work places through numerous part time and full time jobs. Such experience within different industries has helped broaden my intellect; vastly improving my team work, communication skills and time efficiency. Thus moulding me in to an extremely capable and trustworthy employee. Never wanting to miss a moment of learning throughout my education has left me with an outstanding punctuality and attendance record. I have a full UK driving Licence that I have used to transport equipment from locations in commercial vehicles.
