AKA

David J McDonald

Short bio

Following my childhood in London, I began entertaining at 16 years old in Radio and the NAAFI whilst in the Royal Air Force; before performing comedy at theatres, clubs and holiday resorts world-wide.

I continued to perform while spending twenty years in the Metropolitan Police Service, where I received commendations from The Commissioner of Police , Old Bailey Judges and the Sheriff of London, etc. for covert work, which I reluctantly mention to highlight a rich eclectic history from which to draw inspiration, factuality and realism.

I have loved writing, publishing the book in 2011 and latterly editorial for newspapers while, concentrating on honing the art of the screenplay.

I aim to create TV programmes and movies where audiences escape into the world of the many faceted characters whose lives take them on an unpredictable journey with authentically dramatic and or comically driven storylines.

The source for the legal, police and covert aspects of some scripts are my own background as a covert officer for the Metropolitan Police for 20 years.

In January I was a guest on the Red Carpet at the Screenwriters Awards, Paramount Studios in Hollywood.

Recently I WON a major UK, Screenwriting competition

Another script has progressed in the Screencraft Film Fund competition.

I also received a LAUREL at the Austin Film Festival.

I am in the final Eight of the Hammond House International Literary Competition.

I am extremely fortunate to have UK, US Producers and Execs requesting to read my new TV thriller.

The Development Producer of Scripted Comedy at a major company, read my new half hour comedy screenplay, and really liked it. I'm so excited to say, I'm working on notes from them now.

And have just finished writing a draft Pilot, an Emmy Award Winner asked me to do; and they love it!

Kindest regards,

Dave Mac
