Hello! I am a young runner/location assistant based in London. I enjoy collaborating and communicating with teams on any scale, to ultimately get that job done in the most efficient and effective way possible. Above all else, I believe in hard graft, putting in the hours, the effort, the muscle or whatever the task may require. I am ready to jump right at any opportunities that may arise with the full force of my film/tv industry skillset, nourished by a diverse range of early location department on-set experiences and my time training at the London Screen Academy. I have also seen experiences in stage management for local theatre, where I have fine-tuned my versatile problem-solving skills - I love a good logistical puzzle, the bigger the better. I have also, for personal development and achievement, began an Open University 'Religion, Philosophy and Ethics' degree, which I believe demonstrates my organisational prowess and passion for anything that I may apply myself to. At this stage in my career, I am seeking the broadest range of experiences out there and I'll make all my promises that I'll give you the best of me to wholly complete your team.
