PROFILE

With a background in retail and an education in broadcasting television and radio production as well as creative digital media, I have been able to develop my skills within any setting, be that teamwork or independent work, I pride myself on my ability to learn at incredible speed: any role, any software, any department. Having quickly acquired and honed various skills to be industry-ready, showcasing adaptability and a commitment to growth to deliver excellent, consistent work. Bringing a diverse skill set and am eager to expand my capabilities through experience. I am extremely organised, having training in production management for digital media.

WORK EXPERIENCE

FREELANCE

Within the television industry I work freelance across many different departments. Gaining experience and knowledge of a production from the ground up. It was here I was given responsibilities such as ensuring a healthy relationship between the owners of the location and the production, knowledge of the location plus surrounding area, collaborating across different departments allowing my education for different technologies to expand.
