ABOUT ME

Having coordinated a growing high-profile TV and film studio, I've gained first-hand experience in the fast-moving world of production – managing everything from bookings and logistics, to touring producers and talent round the site. While I've thrived in a studio setting, I'm now looking to take that experience onto set, stepping into a more production-based role where I can be on the ground, supporting the team and learning through action.

I bring strong organisational skills and a proactive mindset to every task, along with the flexibility and resilience built from years of working in high-pressure environments. I'm ready to support a crew, and grow within the production world.
