PROFILE

I have a passion for the industry as a whole and have always been interested in how projects are created behind the scenes. I am keen to gain as much experience as possible and am always looking for opportunities to further my knowledge of the industry. I have taken part in and completed many online short courses, events and seminars including BFI's Future Film Festival and short courses from Screenskills. I also have a passion for history and previously ran an English history channel on TikTok. I am also currently in pre-production for a pantomime that will be directing/producing later in the year.
