DIRECTOR

Tracey graduated with a BA (hons) in English with Radio, Film and Television Studies in 1988 and whilst there directed her first 16mm film which was entered in the Fuji Film Competition, starring Judi Dench and Michael Williams it received a special commendation from the judges. Her first job was with BBC Sport and Children's based in London and Manchester and then with ITV Sport for Granada Television. It was here that she began her directing career, producing and directing several documentaries, one of which included the first British interview with Nelson Mandela after his election as President, it went on to receive an RTS Nomination. She successfully completed a multi camera directors course at Granada and progressed to direct a series of programmes ranging from news and documentaries to light entertainment. In 2001 she returned to her first love of drama and has since directed Emmerdale, Hollyoaks and Coronation Street for which she received a BAFTA nomination in 2006. Most recently she has worked on Nickelodeon's House of Anubis and BBC family drama All at Sea.
