I consider myself to be an adaptable person, with a broad range of experiences and a mature attitude. I enjoy work where I am not confined to one location and can work with a wide range of people. I consider myself to have very good verbal and written communication skills. I am confident when talking to people and have a broad range of IT skills. I have always taken a keen interest in my own development, and would welcome any opportunities for further training.

With experience, I have become more confident and developed a range of transferable skills, which have proven useful in subsequent work.
